'GUILTY' IS PLEA OF JOHN SCHRANK

Man Who Shot Roosevelt Confesses His Crime in Milwaukee Court.

JUDGE DELAYS HIS SENTENCE

Will Make Sanity Inquiry—Prisoner Asks Jurist to Distinguish Between the Colonel as a "Menace" and as a Private Citizen.

Milwaukee, Nov. 13.—John Schrank pleaded guilty here of attempting to murder Theodore Roosevelt, and in his plea he sought to distinguish between an attack upon Roosevelt as a "menace" and an attack upon Roosevelt as a citizen. Municipal Judge A. C. Backus announced, after reading a petition from District Attorney Winfred C. Zabel, that later he would name a commission to examine into Schrank's mental condition.

The court appointed Attorney Joseph Flanders of Milwaukee to represent Schrank in the sanity hearing. The experts are expected to begin their examination immediately after being instructed by the court.

Schrank's case was the first before the court.

"Is there any matter to come before the court?" asked Judge Backus. "There is the case of the state of Wisconsin against John Schrank," replied the district attorney, who then read the complaint, in which Schrank was accused of having made an assault upon the person of "one Theodore Roosevelt, with a deadly weapon and with intent then and there to kill and slay the said Theodore Roosevelt."

"How do you plead to this charge?" the prosecutor asked the prisoner standing at his elbow.

"Why, guilty, Mr. Zabel," replied the prisoner, in a confused way as though not sure he was following the proper procedure.

"Thought Colonel Was 'Menace.'" "You have heard the complaint," interposed Judge Backus in a loud voice; "you understand that in it you are charged with having attempted to murder Theodore Roosevelt. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"I did not mean to kill a citizen, judge," began Schrank, and the crowd in the courtroom gave first audible evidence of its interest in the case. "I shot Theodore Roosevelt because he was a menace to the country. He should not have a third term. It is bad that a man should have a third term. I did not want him to have one. I shot him as a warning that men must not try to have more than two terms as president."

"I shot Theodore Roosevelt to kill him. I think all men trying to keep themselves in office should be killed; they become dangerous. I did not do it because he was a candidate of the Progressive party, either, gentlemen," he concluded.

The court refused to accept the plea of "guilty" until Schrank's sanity had been investigated, and announced the appointment of the following to act as a commission for this purpose:

Dr. F. C. Studley, head of a local sanitarium.

Dr. W. F. Becker, formerly of the State Hospital for Insane.

Dr. D. W. Harrington.

Dr. Richard Dewey, head of a local sanitarium.

Dr. W. F. Wegge.

FATHER FOLEY WINS POPULARITY CONTEST

CATHOLIC FAIR ENDED LAST EVENING—MORRIS ROSBROOK WON THE DIAMOND.

One of the most successful fairs St. Patrick's church has ever conducted came to a close at Rosbrook hall last evening, the awarding of the diamond ring prize, the decision of the popularity contest between Fathers Foley and Donohue and a session of free dancing completing the happy bazaar. Morris Rosbrook was awarded the diamond ring, while the popularity contest was decided in favor of Father Foley. A substantial sum of money was cleared by the bazaar, and the members of the church and its priests are thankful to all for their help in making the fair such a success.

SCARLET FEVER IS DISAPPEARING

DOCTORS REPORT THAT ALL DANGER WILL BE OVER BY END OF THE WEEK.

The committee of doctors having charge of the scarlet fever situation report that excellent progress is being made in stamping out the few cases known to exist and in all probability the danger will be passed by the end of the week. A number of children on the south side who were quarantined early in the week, because they had been exposed, were given clean bills of health by the physicians in charge today and will be allowed to return to school tomorrow.

WILL TAKE CABLE FROM THE WATER

COMMITTEE APPOINTED—WIRE HAS PROBABLY SAVED SEVERAL LIVES.

Mayor W. B. Brinton has appointed C. H. Lapham, G. A. Ward and Nate Morrill as a committee to take down and store the life-saving cable and floats from above the dam. This cable, which as far as is known, is the first of its kind in the state, was put up after the tragic accident which cost the life of Warren Lally, and since it was stretched it is known to have prevented at least three boat loads of young people from going over the dam. It will be put up again in the spring, before the navigation of pleasure craft begins.

PLAN A COMBINATION.

Springfield, Nov. 13.—Special to Telegraph—Several republican members of the house are planning for a conference soon at Springfield for the purpose of considering a combination of the progressive representatives of all parties to elect the speaker of the house and possibly two U. S. senators.

OLIVER A. OVER HAS DISAPPEARED

SOUTH DIXON MAN CANNOT BE LOCATED—MAY BE VISITING FRIENDS.

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN DEMENTED

Over's Finances Not in Particularly Bad Condition and He Took Only a Little Money With Him.

The family and friends of Oliver A. Over, a tenant on the Brookner farm south of the city, have asked the officials to assist in ascertaining the whereabouts of Mr. Over, who left his home Saturday, Nov. 2 and has not been heard from since. It is the belief of his son, who came to Dixon last evening from Rock Falls to consult with the officials, that Mr. Over was laboring under some mental strain, which caused him to board the 5:10 passenger train, southbound on the afternoon of Nov. 2.

As far as can be ascertained the man was not involved in any serious financial difficulties, and it is known that he had only about $50 in cash on his person when he left the city. It is said, also, that he had no family troubles, and therefore it is believed that some mental agitation caused his unannounced departure. His description, as he left his home, is:

Height, 5 feet 6 or 7 in.; weight, about 160 pounds, light brown hair and sandy mustache, round face and fairly stout, wore gold rimmed spectacles, dark blue serge suit with a small dark stripe, dark grey overcoat with black velvet collar and a black stiff hat. Also wore "rheumatism" ring on second finger of right hand.

Relatives in the south, whom it is suspected Mr. Over had gone to visit, have been written to, but not all of them have been heard from and it is hoped, in fact it is thought, he will eventually return to his home in this city.

Peculiar Coincidence.

A peculiar coincidence in Mr. Over's disappearance is that the last man who lived on the Brookner farm, which Mr. Over left, also ran away. The former tenant was George Brookner who, after moving to Dixon during the winter, left his home in this city Tuesday, April 9, ostensibly to go to Ewing, Neb., to purchase a carload of horses, and who has not been heard from since. However, Brookner, before leaving, cashed a number of sale notes and took with him all of his available cash. In this respect Over's disappearance differs in this particular, as he took but very little money with him.

GUESS WHO LEADS NOW

T. R. With 10 Votes, But Wilson Carried California for 30 Minutes.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Woodrow Wilson carried California for 30 minutes. Then Colonel Roosevelt jumped ahead again and at present writing his plurality is ten votes.

Last night the colonel's lead in the California endurance race had been reduced to 68, with sixteen precincts to hear from. Later the president-elect made a spurt and for half an hour was 15 to the good. Then additional official returns came in and T. R. regained his lead. The difference was made in the official count of Sierra county, which gave Roosevelt twenty-five more votes than the unofficial count. The total vote now stands: Roosevelt, 282,042; Wilson, 282,032.

GO TO CHAMPAIGN.

C. Gonnerman and Misses Lillian and Gladys Gonnerman will go to Champaign tomorrow to attend a homecoming of the students of the University of Illinois.

PUBLIC HEARING ON THIRD ST. PAVEMENT

THERE IS SOME DISAGREEMENT AS TO WIDTH OF STREET—HEARING FRIDAY.

The board of local improvements will meet at the city hall Friday at 1:30 p. m. for the public hearing on the first of the paving improvements which are contemplated by the administration. The proposed improvement, for which the scheme has been adopted and which it is hoped can be completed early next year, is the pavement of Third street from Galena avenue west to Douglas avenue.

The public hearing on the proposition is likely to bring out some objection, as it is understood that some of the property owners wish to have the width of the pavement cut down from 36 to 30 feet. However, it is pointed out, the curbs are in in many places on the street and they make the width of the street 36 feet. All who desire the reduction of the width of the street state that they are willing to pay the cost of placing new curbs at the narrower mark but it is not probable the board will accept the reduction, as third street is one of the main highways of the city east and west. It is certain, from the disagreement as to the width the pavement should be, that the meeting will be well attended and full of interest.

MOTHER SLAYS CHILD

Demented Woman Drowns Daughter; Sought Own Life.

Blow From Ax Sets Her Brain Right and She Awakens to Full Realization of Acts.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—A blow from an ax, intended to end her own life after she had taken that of her nine-year-old daughter, in an instant brought a mother who was temporarily crazed from a brain affliction to her rational senses. Wild with regret for her deed, the woman worked frantically to revive the child, and only when exhausted by grief and loss of blood from her own wound did she summon aid. The slayer is Mrs. Ella Crawford, living at 6440 Justine street, who killed her daughter Elenora, drowning her in a bathtub.

Physicians do not believe the woman was responsible when she killed her child.

"There is every symptom," said Dr. M. H. Pauly, who was called to the house after the body was found, "which seems to prove that the blow she gave herself opened a clot in the artery which oppressed the brain, depriving her of reason. This clot removed, the blood circulated and the brain became normal."

"It appears that the incision made in her head by the ax had the same effect as a trepanning operation to give relief in such cases."

In German Deaconess hospital the mother's grief was pitiful. She shrieked in a fit of madness she had killed her only child, and became hysterical. Opiates were administered to quiet her.

SHAPIRO PICKS SLAYERS

Chauffeur of Rosenthal Murder Car Betrays His Four Companions.

New York, Nov. 13.—William Shapiro, chauffeur of the murder car, picked out "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey" Lewis and "Dago Frank" as the actual murderers of Herman Rosenthal. "These are the men," he declared solemnly. "Whitey," "Frank," "Lefty," "Gyp," I took them in my car to the Metropole; I heard the shots fired; they came running back, two of them with pistols in their hands; they leaped into the car, two on each side; Gyp put a revolver to my head and cried:

"Hurry up, you boob, and drive out of here!"

"And then, as the car dashed off, I heard them say:

"'Nobody saw us. There wasn't a cop around. Becker fixed it all right.'"

Mr. Lorimer was taken to the hospital after having been stricken at his home, 4218 Sheridan road. Operation is deferred.

Senator Dixon Issues Call for December 11 in Chicago.

National Committee to Have Conference for Purpose of Mapping Out Its Future Plans.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Senator Joseph M. Dixon, chairman of the Progressive Republican national committee, the organized head of the Bull Moose party, announced a call for a meeting of the committee to be held in Chicago December 11 and 12, for conference and development of legislative and organization plans. Coincident with the issuance of this call, Senator Dixon gave an interview indicating that the war on the old Republican party, waged in the recent campaign by Colonel Roosevelt and his friends, is to be continued with vigor during the Democratic administration that is to begin next March, with the purpose of capturing the house of representatives two years from now and the presidency in four years.

"To this conference of the Progressive Republican national committee," said Senator Dixon, "will be invited all Bull Moose state chairmen, all candidates for governors in the last fight in sympathy with the Bull Moose movement and about twenty Bull Moose congressmen."

"It is our purpose to devise ways and means to carry on our work and to spread our propaganda during the next two years, or until after the next congress is elected. I think that we will have a great and a historical conference in Chicago."

Coach Fingal has worked the team until they are in excellent condition and can put up a remarkably fast game. Therefore, with suitable weather, it is anticipated that there will be a large crowd at Saturday's game.

Arta, Nov. 13.—Eight hundred Turkish regulars, 150 gendarmes and 300 Albanians under orders of the commandant of the gendarmes of Yanina, have pillaged and burned five more villages, making a total of 11. Six thousand women and children living near Yanina are starving, deriving scant nourishment from roots and leaves. Numbers of them are dying daily of fever. In one village 25 prominent men, two of them priests, were cut into small pieces. The details are unprintable. In another village 12 girls were violated and subsequently, after revolting mutilation, impaled.

London, Nov. 13.—The Bulgarians have placed the outer line of forts at Tchatalja in front of Constantinople, according to dispatches received here, and are rushing their cavalry into the gap to clear positions for the artillery and infantry. The fighting is desperate.

That the Bulgarians have divided their army into divisions and are attempting another flank movement is indicated by a dispatch stating that they have captured Rodosto, on the Sea of Marmora, Eregh, Silivri and Midia. Another column has reached Blyuk Chikmedys on the Sea of Marmora to the south of Tchatalja.

Austria-Hungary Makes Demands.

Petgrad, Nov. 13.—An attempt to exact a pledge, regarded in some circles as tantamount to a threat, was made by the Austro-Hungarian minister in a conference with Premier Pachtich.

The Austrian minister proposed that Servia give guarantees not to touch Albania, to abandon her project to establish an outlet on the Adriatic sea and be content with an outlet to the Aegean sea.

The premier replied that the best way for Austria-Hungary to display her friendship was to waive her demands and withdraw interference in respect to Servia's intentions in regard to Albania.

The premier added that he could give the minister no answer to proposals and forthwith laid them before King Peter, who in turn instructed that they be referred to the other Balkan governments.

Phidian Art Club.

Owing to the inclement weather the attendance at the meeting of the Phidian Art club Tuesday afternoon was unusually small. But those who braved the clouds were more than repaid by Mrs. Bardwell's cordial hospitality and the enjoyment of two excellent papers by Mrs. O. B. Dodge and Mrs. Knight. Mrs. Dodge's paper on "The Growth of Music in England," was preceded by a number on the Victrola, the solo, "He Shall Feed His Flock," from Handel's Messiah, as sung by Emma Juch, and followed by a record of one of the Morris dances of the time of Henry VIII.

The growth of music in England is divided into three chief stages: The barbarous, transitory and artistic. The advance of music was more slow than that of any of the other arts, but a revolution came in the 16th century, receiving a great impetus during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when music was a large feature of all entertainments in her honor.

In the Tudor period came the Masque, which reached its height in the reign of James I. It was the forerunner of modern opera, and in 1616 came the climax in an extravaganza called "The Golden Age Restored." This brought the art down to the time of the Reformation which closed the paper.

Another fine solo from Sullivan's opera of "The Prodigal Son," was enjoyed, after which came the paper on Romney and Lawrence by Mrs. Knight. George Romney was born in 1734, one of a large family. He had little schooling, but did some wood-carving and made a violin at an early age. His first interest in art was induced by some wood cuts he saw in a magazine.

At twenty-three he married Mary Abbott and his treatment and neglect of her are the great blot on his history. He lived in London, and gradually became the fashion; made trips abroad which were profitably spent in study and the painting of notable people. After his return to London he had twenty years of continuous success and during this time made many of his famous portraits of Lady Hamilton. But ill health in 1799 caused him to return to his long deserted wife and family, and he died in 1802 surrounded by their undeserved love and care.

Sir Thomas Lawrence was born in 1769. His father was an inn-keeper and amused his guests by having the lad draw their portraits in pencils and colored chalks when he was only five years old. When thirteen years old he set up in Bath, meeting with great encouragement. At eighteen he entered the Royal Academy as a student; before he was old enough to enter as a member he was made an associate at the king's request. He succeeded Benjamin West as president of the Royal Academy in 1826. He died in 1830. He was the favorite portrait painter of his time and had an immense patronage. His portraits are of immense value also as historical monuments.

BABY IN GREAT MISERY WITH RASH

On Face, Spread Until Nearly All Over Body, Crust on Head, Hair Fell Out, Itch Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Monroe, Wis.—"When my baby was six weeks old there came a rash on his face which finally spread until it got nearly all over his body. It formed a crust on his head, hair fell out and the itch was terrible. When he would scratch the crust the water would ooze out in big drops. On face and body it was in a dry form and would scale off. He was in great misery and at nights I would lay awake holding his hands so that he could not scratch and disfigure himself. I tried simple remedies at first, then got medicine, but it did no good. Finally a friend suggested Cuticura Remedies, so I sent for a sample to see what they would do, when to my surprise after a few applications I could see an improvement, and he would rest better. I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap and before I had them half used my baby was cured. His head is now covered with a luxuriant growth of hair and his complexion is admired by everybody and has no disfigurements. I hope other mothers will profit by my experience and not be worn out with poor babies who are tortured with skin and scalp affections." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Saunders, Sept. 29, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexion, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

SOON SUES FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Lee Ho of New York Declares Heart of Husband Was Filled by Miss Gwe Yok.

New York.—An oriental flavor was added to the bargain day divorces in the Supreme court by the presence of Lillie Lee, Chinese wife of Lee Ho Soon, a restaurant proprietor at 134 Third avenue.

Mrs. Lee, or Soon, just as you prefer, was the first Chinese wife to come into court and ask a regular, everyday American divorce from a Chinaman husband. She couldn't stand for a rival in her husband's affections. Soon did not take the trouble to come to court or have a lawyer there to represent him.

Mrs. Lee is twenty-five years old. She married Soon on October 4, 1908. They lived together until August, 1911. Since that time Mrs. Lee has not entered her husband's home or partaken of chop suey with him.

M. L. Nichols, the only Caucasian in the divorce proceeding, testified that on the night of June 11 last, while he was calling upon Lee Ho Soon in Soon's restaurant, Soon said, "Come on up and meet my wife."

Nichols had already been introduced to Lillie James Lee, the plaintiff in the divorce action. He said he was surprised to find that Soon's "wife" was another dark-eyed Chinese lassie. Nichols told the real Mrs. Soon what he had discovered, and she started the divorce suit.

ELEVEN CHILDREN TOO MANY

Foreigner Wanted a Mother for His Five—She Had Six, So He Returns License.

Pittsburg.—A sad tale was related to the marriage license clerks by Antoni Rosenski, forty-three years old, who took out a license August 2 to wed Kazmeria Paterski, thirty-five years old. Rosenski returned his license. It had not been used.

"Two many kids," was the explanation Rosenski gave when telling the marriage license clerks why he did not use the license.

Rosenski was once married, but his wife died in 1910, leaving five children to care for.

While at work one day a friend told him of a widow who was about to be deported by the United States immigration officers on account of not being able to support herself.

Rosenski decided to marry her to keep her from being deported and also to have a mother for his five children.

"Have you got children?" asked Rosenski.

"Only six," was her reply. Eleven was too many for Rosenski, according to his statement, and he jilted the widow.

WOMAN CALLS MAN LAZY

Employed 18 Hours a Day, However, Wants Husband "Industrious."

New York.—John Lancaster holds two positions and works 18 hours a day. Mrs. Lancaster in the Yonkers police court charged him with being lazy. The indignant wife told Judge Ellis she wanted John "straightened out."

Lancaster says he works all day for a railroad and then works until midnight for an express company. He earns $30 to $40 a week and out of this sum Mrs. Lancaster lets him keep two ($2) dollars.

A witness in the courtroom remarked aside: "I don't see how you can call a human yeast cake lazy. Yeast always works—and so does John, it seems."

Judge Ellis finally brought the couple to terms. Mrs. Lancaster will go back to their farm in Staatsburg, and her husband will allow her the bulk of his weekly salaries while he tries to get one more job.

13TH WHITE HOUSE BRIDE MAY BE A WILSON GIRL

WASHINGTON SOCIETY HAS BELIEF THERE IS CHANCE FOR A WEDDING, WITH THREE "BACHELOR MAIDS" IN NEW PRESIDENT'S FAMILY

Washington, Nov. 12.—The advent of a presidential household, with three marriageable daughters forming a part of it—something unprecedented—arouses Washington society to speculation as to the possibility of one or more White House weddings during the Wilson administration.

Although the Wilson sisters are known as "bachelor maids," there is ever a tendency toward romance in the lives of the younger occupants of the historic mansion, and therefore the possibility that one or more of the Wilson girls will bring about a change of title.

A deliver into the romances of the mansion has called attention to the old thirteen superstition by discovering that the next Whitehouse bride will be the thirteenth. Alice Roosevelt, the last White House bride, was the twelfth. The one before that was Frances Polson, who became Mrs. Grover Cleveland. Emily Platt, a niece of President Hayes, was married in the White House, during her uncle's administration, to General Russell Hasting. The wedding of Elizabeth Tyler, daughter of President to William Waller of Virginia, in 1842.

During President Jackson's administration three weddings took place in the White House—those of Delia Lewis of Nashville; and Alphonse Pageot, a member of the French legation; Mary Easton, a niece of Mrs. Jackson; and Lucien B. Polk, and Emily Martin, a relative of the President, and Lewis Randolph.

The first White House wedding was in 1811, when Mrs. Madison's younger sister, Lucy Payne Washington, widow of a nephew of George Washington, was the bride.

The question now asked is whether one of the Wilson girls will float superstition and become the thirteenth White House bride. —Record Hcr. Ill.

INDIAN RIDES FAR TO PAY

Aged Red Man Had to Wait for Seven Years Before He Got Enough to Settle.

Ellensburg, Wash.—Making a 50-mile trip on horseback to pay a debt of $5 contracted seven years ago, "Old John" Hamult, with his grandson, Indian Louis Sam, arrived from Wapato to settle his account with T. W. Farrell.

Although nearly eighty years of age, "Old John" remembered every detail of the transaction seven years ago, and when he came into Farrell's store he drew a leather pouch from his pocket, took out the $5 and said in Indian language:

"I came to pay you your money, $5; that all I owe you, my old friend."

Mr. Farrell, who had quite forgotten him, recalled the incident and, taking down his books, found the entry of the loan. It developed that "Old John" had not come to Ellensburg for seven years because he did not have the $5 to pay his debt.

Says Spouse Loved Lady Barber. Chicago.—Alleging that her husband, a wealthy manufacturer, fell in love with a lady barber while he was being lathered, and set her up in business with an $800 tip, Mrs. Alvan H. Arnold has sued for divorce.

The Sweetest Story Ever Told.

Wm. Lee, the accommodating and versatile drayman, is the proud and self-confessed possessor of a sweet tooth, which he wears continually in his lower jaw. This same sweet tooth is responsible for Wm's great love of sugar. Therefore, it was but natural, early this week, while passing through the Grand Detour plow works when he saw a pile of white powder, that looked just like sugar that had leaked out of some sacks. Will grabbed a handful and threw it into his face. Now that white powder was borax which is used for tamping plows. The scene after William had filled his face with the tamping material proved plainly that he has a temper, but the meagre words of the English vocabulary are insufficient for a proper description of just what happened. The fertile imagination of the dear reader may work overtime and then fall short. Will is going to have the sweet tooth pulled.

Our Faith.

We have been requested to outline our political policy for our multitude of readers, and to tell what party we belong to. Which request we honor with the following:

We belong to a party with dark brown hair and likewise eyes. Weight about 120 pounds; 5 feet 6 inches in height. Age (none of your business). We have belonged to this party for nine years and have no intention of changing.

We always believe in the best man whether he be homeopath, allopath, chiropractic or osteopath.

We do not believe a man wrong politically just because he doesn't agree with us. In fact we know he is.

We believe that in this country one man is just as good as another, if not a little better.

We think that where the cost of living is too high it should be cut down, and where it is too low it should be elevated.

We favor a four hour working day.

We believe in fairies, but not to the extent we did when we were younger.

We believe that every member of each family should have his own tooth brush.

We are unalterably and irrevocably in favor of the tight skirt, the Divine Right of Kings (as against Jacks or tens), the 10-cent limit in poker and a lot of other things. If our anxious friend is not clear now as to where we stand we will be pleased to enlighten him further.

He made light of the danger because that was his way when he was in a particularly tight place; but he realized the peril by this time as fully as did the doctor. There was nothing humorous in the fact that all the time they were held prisoners atop the chiffonier by the gray death before them, the Hindoos were doubtless making the most of the time thus gained for escape. True, he had asked that all the ordinary avenues of escape from the city be watched, and although he took it for granted Chief Manning would carry out the request conscientiously, he was not at all confident the men sent from the Central Office and from the various precinct headquarters would be proof against the adroitness of Indian noblemen, adepts, and thugs. Moreover, it was as good as certain that the Swami, the Prince, and their followers would not seek to flee the city by any ordinary route. Britz himself, had he been free to continue the pursuit, would have looked first to the most extraordinary modes of flight compatible with practical conditions. From what he knew of the men, by this time it would not amaze him greatly to find they had left the city by airship or submarine, slightly improbable as either means of transit might have been a few years before.

"Bottled up, doc!" he exclaimed gloomily.

"That's what it looks like," assented Fitch.

"Unless," Britz continued, "we can get that gun—"

"And use it effectively," put in Fitch. "I'm something of a shot," the detective ventured, meditatively. "Maybe I could hit it, and maybe I could get that gun."

His eyes, ranging the room in the immediate neighborhood of the chiffonier, had alighted upon the water pipe. The long, flexible rubber stem of the narghileh was stretched across the table and the mouthpiece hung over the back of a chair within a few feet of the top of the chiffonier.

"I'll try it," said the detective decisively. "Give a hand here, doc!"

Fitch hooked one arm about the ornamental knob at the back of the chiffonier, and with his free hand gripped the detective's left wrist. Britz, his left hand clutching the doctor's sleeve, the toe of his left boot thrust between the chiffonier and the wall, leaned far out in an attempt to reach the tube of the water pipe. He withdrew his arm quickly, however, and gave a little nervous cough as the drab death that lay coiled in the middle of the floor straightened its sinister length and glided swiftly across the room, then coiled itself once more directly under the spot where the detective's stretching fingers had been. Once more the head arose with that strange, sinuous, swaying motion, and it began to move slowly back and forth, while the glinting eyes seemed to shoot sparks toward the man who hung at such fearful hazard above it.

"Geel!" said Britz. "This is getting a little too close for comfort. How far can that thing stretch, doctor?"

"No higher than that," answered Fitch, "at least, I think not. I understand the cobra can strike only straight forward."

"Sure it can't make an upper cut?" inquired the sleuth.

"I'm not going to say positively. I'm not sure of anything with that kind of a brute," Fitch answered. "The best way is to take no chances. Let me have a try for the gun."

A bifurcated scarlet thread, the slender forked tongue of the reptile, darted in and out of its gaping jaws in a frenzied way. It was apparent to anyone—he be scientist or layman—that the serpent was in a white heat of fury. Woe betide the human flesh that came within reach of that eager, death-dealing venom.

Britz, though he was known the length and breadth of the department as the coolest proposition under Manning's command, frankly shuddered as he watched the undulating menace of the serpent's body, and the staccato play of the tongue that seemed to mock him with the deadly humor of a fiend. He was willing to risk his life, if need be, to prevent the escape of the dark, subtle enemies whose demoniacal ingenuity had caught him in such a trap, for trapped he seemed to be beyond the possibility of escape. That they had matched their cunning against his cold, hard, Occidental skill and common sense, only made him the more determined to outwit, outplay, outfight them.

"No, doc," said the detective firmly. "It was my fool carelessness that left that gun on that table, and it's up to me to get it. You hold me fast and sit tight, and if anybody gets stung, it'll be me."

Once again Britz, warily watching the snake, stretched forth his arm, stretched his fingers until he could almost feel them crack and strained his muscles almost beyond endurance, while his nerve was subjected to the severest test of all his experience. At last he nipped the smooth amber of the pipestem's mouthpiece between the tips of his first and second fingers. It was the slightest of grasps; but so steady were the nerves of the Headquarters man that although the cobra in its swaying seemed to approach ever nearer the arm and naked wrist that shrank involuntarily from the fancied death-thrust of those gleaming fangs, still he did not flinch. He clung to the pipestem, his fingers steadily drawing it toward him until he had a firm clutch on the rubber tube. Then with a powerful upward and backward heave, he regained his position on the chiffonier, the twisting hose gripped in his hand. The other end of the pipestem still was attached to the bowl of the narghileh. As the tube festooned between the table and the chiffonier, it went close to the head of the cobra. Lightning-like, the head dashed toward it, fangs bristling, and only a quick twitch of the detective's fingers snatched the stem beyond the reach of those poison-freighted ivory needles.

That jerk freed the other end of the tube from the pipe bowl, and Britz quickly looped it in his hands. Holding both ends of the long stem, he knotted a single loop in the middle and flung it like a double lariat upon the table beside the pistol. Slowly dragging the pipestem back, he pulled it, after several trials, about the chamber of the weapon. Then, handing one end of the tube to the doctor, Britz took hold of the other, explaining his purpose to Fitch in a few words. The detective stretched his arm away from the chiffonier at one end; the physician did the same at the other, and they stooped pulling in opposite directions, thus tightening the loop about the pistol. When the grip of the tube on the weapon was firm enough, it was comparatively easy to swing the revolver from the table to the chiffonier. Britz gripped the gun with an intake of breath that betokened satisfaction.

"Now, then, doc," he said briskly. "Let's see if we can't put the reverse English on that Garden of Eden episode. Here's where the seed of the woman bruises the serpent with his heel."

"I would advise you to do your bruising at long distance," said Fitch, "and unless you have more cartridges about you, I wouldn't waste a shot. You won't find it easy to hit him."

Britz in a moment or two realized the doctor spoke true. The swaying, neutral-tinted body was no easy mark for the most practiced marksman. His first shot went wide. The bullet imbedded itself in a leg of the table with a rasping sound that only infuriated the cobra the more. Britz his nerve slightly shaken by the miss, fired again quickly, shivered the bowl of the narghileh, and caused the snake to oscillate more and more violently. It became apparent he would gain nothing by aiming at his head.

"I'll have a try at him 'midships," he said.

Only three loaded cartridges remained in the revolver, and as Britz found no extra ones in any of his pockets, he knew he must make the most of those he had. A third time the pistol cracked. The bullet grazed the serpent's flesh. It did not injure the spine. Quickly the upraised part of the body sank upon the coil, but it reared itself again in an instant, and the furious darting of the tongue revealed that the reptile was more enraged than ever.

"Want to take a crack at it, doc?" asked the detective, handing the weapon to the physician.

Fitch had no poor idea of himself as a fancy shot, but he found his muscular control too sadly shaken by his narrow escape from the cobra to shoot straight. His shot—the fourth—was a wider miss than any of the detective's had been. He handed the pistol back to the Headquarters man and shook his head.

"You're the man to stay on the firing line," he said.

Britz eyed the revolver grimly. In its blue-steel chamber were four empty cartridges and only one that held the potentiality of release from their dangerously uncertain refuge on the chiffonier. Cooling his left arm, he used the angle made by his elbow as a rest and leveled the long blue barrel of the big-calibered weapon steadily. Pausing until the swaying of the serpent diminished as much as it apparently was going to do, he fired.

A writhing, twisting snarl was the result. The cobra coiled and uncoiled with electric rapidity, traveling in circles all over the space between the chiffonier and the table whence Britz had lassoed the pistol. Plainly the reptile was hit—mortally wounded, he thought, but as he started to descend impatiently, Fitch seized him and literally flung him back on the chiffonier's smooth top.

"Not yet," said the doctor, nervously. "Let's wait a minute."

It was profitable patience. For after probably a minute of terrible struggle, the cobra returned to its coil and once more reared its head. The gray body throbbed fiercely, but closer scrutiny showed the man the snake had not been hit with fatal result. Suddenly the physician seized Britz' arm in a nervous grasp.

"By Jupiter!" he exclaimed. "You've shot out its tongue!"

True enough. The fifth bullet had passed between the gaping jaws of the reptile and taken off the greater part of that darting scarlet thread as neatly as a sharp instrument could snuff a candle. While the wound doubtless caused agony to the snake, it did not lessen its anger. The poison-charged fangs remained in its mouth, and the cutting off of its tongue swelled its fury to the ultimate degree.

Britz dropped the pistol on the chiffonier and thrust both hands in his pockets.

"Up a tree for fair," he said. "Nothing more doing in the artillery line."

"That was your last cartridge?"

Britz bent his head affirmatively. An expression of slow wrath gathered force in the Headquarters man's face, as he stared at the swaying serpent such a short distance below. One could see he was angry enough to take the desperate chance of springing from his perch and trying to strike the cobra with his heels, or, failing that, seizing it by the neck, seeking to throttle it. The instinct of self-preservation, however, was stronger than rage. Britz was willing enough to risk his life in the fulfilling of his duty, so long as the risk meant a fighting chance to him. He was too sensible absolutely to throw his life away, and something told him that in spite of all the courage in the world, no man would have an appreciable percentage of opportunity in a battle at close quarters with so venomous a serpent. Yet he must get out of that house. He felt he was the only man on the police force who could be sure of heading off the Orientals. In that very moment they might be beyond the city's limits, bearing the booty he had pursued for weeks. It was more than his self-poise could stand. He gave rein to his anger, and for the first time in all the doctor's acquaintance with him he swore hard and fast and long. His flow of profanity stopped as suddenly as it had commenced. He drew one hand from his pocket, and slowly, as if he hardly dared to trust his senses, held up his fingers and looked at what they clasped. Then he held the object out triumphantly for the physician to see. It was a loaded cartridge forgotten when last he emptied his pockets of their supply of extra ammunition!

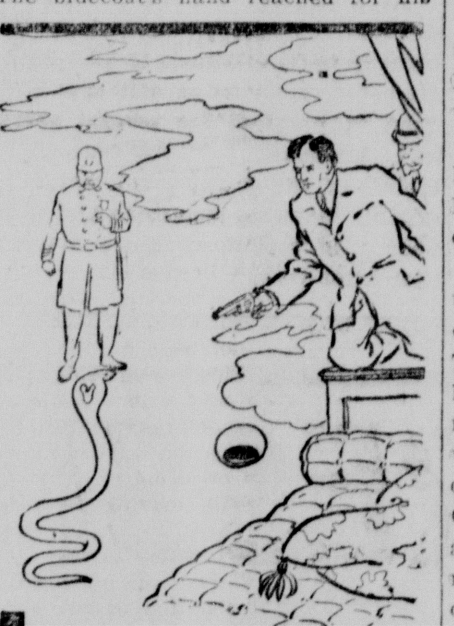

"We'll make no miss with this one," said the sleuth. "Don't you think you can use it better, doc?"

"No," said Fitch. "I am not in your class when it comes to snuffing out serpents' tongues. You may fire when you are ready, Lieutenant."

Britz grinned, shook the empty shells out of the revolver, slipped the full cartridge into one of the chambers and twirled it until it paralleled the barrel. Then, once more using his arm as a rest, he took careful aim, and was about to pull the trigger, when the door was flung open and the uniformed policeman stood on the threshold.

"Well," said the bluecoat, "excuse me for butting in, but I thought something might have—"

Fitch checked him with an upraised hand, and the patrolman's eyes almost burst in their sockets as, lowering his gaze, he saw the up-reaching death covered by the Headquarters man's pistol. For a second's space, none of the three men moved. Then a metallic click broke the suspense, only to leave it in another instant more taut than ever as all three realized the cartridge had missed fire. The bluecoat's hand reached for his club. Panic-stricken though he had been at first sight of the cobra, he had the pluck common to the humblest member of "the finest," and he plainly meditated taking the serpent from the rear. He would not trust to his revolver, lest his aim, spoiled by the intensity of the situation, should fly high and hit one of the two refugees atop the chiffonier. But Britz saved the patrolman from what would undoubtedly have been a foolhardy act of courage. Hastily breaking his revolver open, he made a swift examination of the cartridge, saw that its rim was not dented by the hammer, and, concluding an accident for which the shell was not to blame had prevented an explosion, set the chamber once more, and fired again. This time a crack followed. The great cobra shot into the air, and then fell squirming to the floor. Its coils unloosed as at full length it writhed in its death agony. Britz leaped to the far side of the table, seized a heavy book and hurled it on the serpent's head. That soon ended the reptile's struggles; but the doctor, brave enough under ordinary conditions, was not content until with a dagger-like paper cutter he snatched from the table he severed the snake's head from its twisting body.

Britz, Fitch and the patrolman took deep breaths as they stood on the porch. The detective lost little time in recuperating, though, and after hurried instructions to the bluecoat, he and the doctor jumped into the coupe. The uniformed patrolman climbed to the box, turning the horse's head westward. He drove the weary brute at high speed to a taxicab stand, where the detective and physician entered a horseless vehicle in which they were whirled to Headquarters, where Britz had a short but important conference with the Chief.

Mrs. L. S. Midness was in Chicago the past week to see her daughter, Marie, who starts soon for the south with a patient she is nursing.

S. M. Makestad, J. E. Johnson, Jas. Kennedy and Henry Elide went to DeKalb Tuesday night to see the election returns.

A bold and nifty holdup by two unmasked young men at 9:15 Thursday evening entering the store of T. T. Elide while nearly all of the villagers were attending an entertainment in the opera house. Mrs. Elide was the victim. H. H. Johnson, an old gentleman, was also in the store. One young man entered the store and purchased crackers, sardines and matches and then grasped a gun and ordered her to hand over the money, which was $30 in greenbacks. The robber gave orders to be quiet and backed out.

MADAM! IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS,"

WASTE-CLOGGED BOWELS, TORPID LIVER AND DECAYING FOOD IN STOMACH CAUSE THE SICK HEADACHE, GAS, BACKACHE, SALLOWNESS, BILIOUSNESS AND INDIGESTION

All women get bilious, headachy and constipated, simply because they don't exercise enough. They don't eat coarse food, or enough fruit and green vegetables. Those are nature's ways of keeping the liver and thirty feet of bowels active, but very few women employ them. The next best way is delightful, fruity Syrup of Figs.

Nearly all ills of women can be overcome with Syrup of Figs alone. There is no need to have sick head ache, backache, dizziness, stomach sour and full of gases, bilious spells, sallowness, coated tongue, bad breath, bad complexion, nervousness and depression. The surest and safest remedy is one or two teaspoonsful of delicious Syrup of Figs. Try this tonight—you'll feel splendid in the morning when the sour bile, clogged up waste and poisonous matter have been gently but thoroughly moved on and out of your system, without nausea, griping or weakness. Your head will be clear, complexion rosy, breath sweet, stomach regulated, no more constipation, gases, pains and aches.

It is simply a matter of keeping your stomach, liver and bowels clean and regular. Then you will always be well—always look and feel your best. But get the genuine—the old reliable. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup ups sometimes substituted to fool you. The true, genuine, bears the name California Fig Syrup Company, look for this on the label.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE

Ambassador Bryce's position in this country has not been particularly happy for over a year, owing to nothing in his relations with the American people, but owing entirely to the petulance in Canada, and hostility in Great Britain. His part in the Canadian reciprocity agreement was welcomed by the Laurier government, but was received in bad part by the Borden government, which came in with the defeat of the treaty in the Canadian general elections.

The unfortunate publication of an indiscreet phrase of President Taft in the pre-convention campaign in the United States, gave new bitterness to the opponents of reciprocity, and Mr. Bryce found himself in the position of an ambassador suspected of having worked to the prejudice of the larger aims of British imperialism. The Asquith government stood squarely by the ambassador and would not indulge Mr. Bryce's critics with a hearing, but he must have felt that his position was unfortunate.

The admiration of the American people for him is apparently freely revealed. He has been a sympathetic student of American government and Americans like to think a just appraiser of their worth. In his case there has been an element of personal friendship not usually expected in the relations of a diplomat.

matic representative of one nation to the people of another.

Great Britain and the United States are in a serious controversy, which threatens no break in friendly relations, but which does involve delicate questions of international equity and treaty construction. The United States has taken its position on the Panama toll question placidly, almost indifferently, but Great Britain is animated and may soon be bitter.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Bryce prefers to yield his post at Washington to another man, and may even be that the British government, because of the new conditions is willing to be relieved of criticism at home and surrender a claim to services which otherwise would be invaluable.

The Asquith government has about all the load it can carry now and Mr. Bryce probably would be the first to recognize that he might embarrass the ministry. American would insist that if Great Britain and the United States are to enter a controversy apt to produce bitter results Mr. Bryce could give service of peculiar value to both countries, but the matter may be viewed differently in London.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Many Kansas ministers, complying with a request sent out by the suffrage campaign managers preached in favor of woman suffrage in the churches last Sunday, taking for their text Genesis 1:26 and 27.

On October 10 California celebrated its equal suffrage birthday the women of the state having acquired citizenship October 10, 1911. The Los Angeles Tribune says: The women have written a glorious report into the annals of equal suffrage. Their record is unstained by any blot of inefficiency, partisanship, political uneconomy, indifference to citizenship or lack of womanly dignity. It is written in the hearts of great men and women of the state that this has been a year made richer and greater for California because of the direct aid of women in civic fulfillments.

The Oregon suffrage campaign is receiving the help of a number of California men who strenuously opposed the measure in their own state in 1911. After a year's trial and having seen it in actual practice, they now want the voters of Oregon to follow the lead of California in the matter of enfranchising their women.

In Wisconsin during the past year information on woman suffrage was sought by more people than on any other subject, as shown by the number of package libraries asked for throughout the state. The libraries are sent out by the debating and public discussion department of the University of Wisconsin.

PRIVATE BANKS NEED SUPERVISION

FIVE PRIVATE BANK FAILURES TO ONE NATIONAL BANK—REFORM IS COMING.

Private bank failures are hastening the reform of private banking in Chicago, a subject which was proposed to the Illinois Bankers' association at a recent convention, but defeated. Another derelict institution, that of Dr. T. Kirby, who had become insane, has served to arouse the public to the need of better protection, a need which was urged in the Bankers' convention in Peoria by B. F. Harris in his address as retiring president of the association. He said: "Supervision is sure to come, and we must anticipate and lead the movement, for it will bring more of healing than hurt to the honest private banker and strength to all." The discovery, when too late, that the Kirby bank, another which had no supervision, might not pay depositors more than 50 cents on the dollar, has given new impetus to the public demand which the Bankers' association disregarded. Records by Mr. Harris disprove the assertions made that supervision does not reduce failures. Mr. Harris said: Over any period since the war, statistics show that private bank failures are five to one as compared with those of supervised banks. The losses estimated on the basis of similar deposits are several times more. Short-sighted indeed is he who asks and accepts the solemn trust of the people's funds and ignores their rights in the matter of all reasonable protection. We are convinced there is no foundation in fact for opposition to bank supervision in this state, other than that growing out of purely selfish reasons and the opportunity to do, under unsupervised banking, the things that should not be done under any system of banking that is calculated to be of real service and proper safety to the community."

USE OF PHOSPHORUS DOUBLES WHEAT YIELDS

REMARKABLE GAIN IS SHOWN
WHERE SOIL IS TREATED — ILL. UNIVERSITY BULLETIN.

Urbana, Ill.—Returns just reported of the 1912 wheat yields on the Illinois experiment fields under the direction of Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, show that the application of phosphorus to Illinois soils has increased the wheat yields from 14.4 bu. to 28.9 bu. per acre.

In the spring of 1912 the farmers of Illinois abandoned 52 1-2 per cent of their wheat acreage for other crops and the bureau of statistics reported a promise of only 41 per cent of a crop on the remaining acres, thus showing a prospect of less than 1-5 of a wheat crop as compared to a normal season in the state.

In view of these facts the tremendous advantage secured by proper soil enrichment as shown by results from these experiment fields ought to arouse the liveliest interest in the minds of producers and consumers of wheat. The reports are as follows: 1912 Wheat Yield Per Acre on University of Illinois Soil Experiment Fields:

At Urbana, in East Central Illinois—
Average of Duplicates:

On unfertilized land 5.3 bu.
With organic manure 5.1 bu.
With organic manures and limestone 6.3 bu.

With organic manure, limestone and phosphorus 23.4 bu.

With organic manures, limestone, phosphorus and potassium 25.9 bu.

(Observe that phosphorus practically saved the life of the wheat plant and made the difference between almost no crop and a good crop.)

At Galesburg, in West Central Illinois. Average of Triplicates:

On unfertilized land 15.6 bu.
With limestone 15.9 bu.
With organic manures and limestone 20.5 bu.

With organic manures, limestone and phosphorus 27.4 bu.

With organic manures, limestone, phosphorus and potassium 26.5 bu.

At Mascoutah, in Southern Illinois. Average of Duplicates:

On unfertilized land 11.5 bu.
With organic manures 12.4 bu.
With organic manures and limestone 16.2 bu.

With organic manures, limestone and phosphorus 35.9 bu.

With organic manures, limestone, phosphorus and potassium 34.8 bu.

As a general average phosphorus doubled the crop, increasing the yield from 14.4 bushels to 28.9 bushels per acre. These experiments have been in progress for several years, and the benefit of the permanent system of soil enrichment, including organic manures, limestone and phosphorus is becoming more marked year after year.

WHY WESTERN APPLES ARE GREAT SELLERS

THE EASTERN GROWERS DO NOT GRADE AND PACK FRUIT
AS WELL.

"Apples that taste right" is the label on eastern fruit in the Chicago market that shows a new turn of the public's fickle taste, although the high color and careful packing of western fruit continues to give it preference over the high flavor and indifferent grading of most eastern orchards. "I would rather have an eastern apple to eat myself, but the scrupulous grading of western apples and looks make it easier to sell them," said one fruit expert. "The New York farmer can't get over the idea that he will gain by 'putting over' something that is not up to grade and the same idea prevails in other eastern states where if they only knew it apple growers have the opportunity to get rich simply by being honest. Even the finest apples grown, in flavor and aroma, like those from the apple ridge of Michigan, will not stand the ghost of a show in the city markets unless they are graded as scrupulously as those of the west." At the sign of the big red apple the major portion of the fruit displayed in boxes and the apples with which South Water street is flooded in barrels and in bulk go to the pie factories and other users who pay indifferent prices. The few brands of eastern apples that compare with those from the west find

Sterling Gazette: Carl Coe and S. S. has attempted to bribe the management of the Chester store to refuse him permission to make the slide, but this assertion is vigorously denied by Mr. Coe.

OFFER PREMIUMS TO CLUB MEMBERS

BOYS AND GIRLS IN THIS COUNTY HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO WIN PRIZES.

There has been deposited in the Mercantile Trust and Savings bank of Chicago the sum of $400 in cash, which is to be distributed to the club winners in the territory tributary to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad in the states of Iowa and Illinois, for the fall and spring work in the National Boys' and Girls' Agricultural clubs.

The prize money will be distributed in the four following interests:

1. For the largest yield per acre at the lowest average cost per bushel.
2. The seed-selection contest for this fall.
3. The seed testing contest for spring.
4. The regular club work for 1913. Largest enrollment and highest percentage of results at the close of the year.

Premium Offer No. 1.—To all club members ranging in age from 10 to 18 years, inclusive, who make a yield of 100 or more bushels of corn to the acre at a cost of not to exceed 25 cents a bushel, a solid gold All-Star emblem and medal will be awarded. In addition to this they will be entitled to a life membership in the National All-Star Corn Club and a membership in the Top-Notch club of their native state. The winning of this premium will not bar them from competing for the other premiums listed.

Premium Offer No. 2.—To the club member selecting the largest number of bushels of seed corn by hand before frost, a manual training bench with a complete set of tools will be given. This outfit will cost not less than $20.

Premium Offer No. 3.—To the girl who selects the largest number of bushels of seed corn by hand, a canvas tent and a canning outfit will be given, the value of which will be not less than $20.

Premium Offer No. 4.—To the rural school making the best record as a school in seed corn selection; that is, estimating by the bushel the total seed selection of hand-picked seed, will be given a library of 35 agricultural and cosmetic-science books, value of the same to be not less than $35, including book case.

Premium Offer No. 5.—To the individual boy club member who exhibits the best bushel of hand-picked seed corn at county fair or other county event, a premium of a New International Dictionary and a set of four agricultural library books will be given, value not less than $15.

Premium Offer No. 6.—To the girl who shows the best bushel of hand-picked seed corn at the county fair or other public event, denominated by the committee, a home canning outfit with all necessary equipment, value not less than $15.

Premium Offer No. 7.—To the boy who exhibits the best hill of three stalks of corn, including entire plant, stalk, ear and root system unbroken at county or district fair, a cash prize of $10 will be given.

Premium Offer No. 8.—To the club member who exhibits the most perfect mother-stalk of corn from which to select seed, including stalk, ear, and root system, will be given $5 in cash.

Premium Offer No. 9.—To the rural school that tests the largest number of seed ears during the season from January 1 to May 1, 1913, a $50 cash prize from which a rural school library and one home canning outfit are to be purchased for school purposes.

All seed corn placed on exhibition in competition for the premiums above named are to be subjected to the breed type, quality, vitality and maturity tests. Three judges are to be selected by the county superintendent of each county to judge the exhibits, collect the reports and to transmit the same to the state agent in charge of club work, or the Office of Farm Management, United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C. The county superintendents will also arrange for the holding of contests at the county or district fairs. In case none of these are available a special "exhibit day" should be arranged at the county seat or convenient central place. It is urged that the county superintendent and teachers of each county tributary to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad do everything in their power to create a spirited contest and to get the boys and girls interested in the seed-selection work for the fall. This is an excellent way to give wholesome and help full direction and instruction to the boys and girls and at the same time render a great service to the agricultural welfare of the community. No true teacher will let this opportunity to encourage a worthy cause go by.

lent way to give wholesome and help full direction and instruction to the boys and girls and at the same time render a great service to the agricultural welfare of the community. No true teacher will let this opportunity to encourage a worthy cause go by.

In the spring seed-testing contest the school will be required to keep a tabulated record of the seed tests, giving the names of farmers for which seed was tested, giving the total percentage of strong seed, the total percentage of weak seed and the total percentage of dead seed; stating also the number of ears tested for the farmers. It is recommended that a statement of this seed contest be transmitted to the local papers and to the farmer for whom the seed test was made. In no case should publicity be given to the name of the farmer in connection with his seed value unless he has an unusually strong and high grade seed. The object of this contest is to help secure for the state an adequate supply of vital, high quality, thorough seed and to this end we invite your hearty co-operation.

In all cases it is desirable to have a glazed-finish photograph, unmounted, showing club member and winner with exhibit and premium, the same to be available for use in reporting club winners through the public press and department circulars.

SPANISH PREMIER IS ASSASSINATED

Manuel Pardo Serrato
Shoots Head of Alfonso's
Cabinet to Death.

TWO FATAL SHOTS ARE FIRED

Murderer Is Seized by Police After He Fatally Wounds Self—Dies Later
Without Making Any Statement
Regarding His Deed.

Madrid, Spain, Nov. 13.—Jose Canalejas y Mendez, the prime minister whom Spain has regarded as one of her greatest statesmen, was shot and killed here by a young anarchist, Manuel Pardo Serrato. The assassin attempted suicide and it was first thought that he was dead, but when he had been carried to the hospital he was found to be alive, but died later.

The assassin, who is of Spanish birth, came recently from Buenos Ayres, by way of Paris. Practically nothing is known about him.

The king has appointed the foreign minister, Marquis Manuel Garcia Prieto, as premier pro tempore, and the Liberal government, which Senor Canalejas so conspicuously conducted for several years, remains in power.

Canalejas' Murder Sensational.
The assassination of the premier was sensational in the dexterous manner in which the apparently well laid plan was executed. The shooting occurred just before noon in front of the office of the ministry of the interior, fronting on the Puerto del Sol, or Gate of the Sun, a big square in the center of Madrid, the busiest spot in the city.

Senor Canalejas drove to the curb in his carriage, alighted from the vehicle and after returning the friendly salutations of the crowd, stepped briskly toward the ministry, where a cabinet meeting was about to begin.

Assassin Fires From Behind.
Half way across the sidewalk the assassin stepped up behind him, slightly to the right, and pointed a pistol pointblank at the premier's head. He took aim so quickly that no outcry was heard until he had fired two shots in rapid succession.

Premier Stricken, Falls.
The premier fell to the sidewalk. To a police inspector, who rushed out of the building and asked "What is this, Senor Canalejas?" the prime minister answered: "This wretch has killed me," and expired.

A cabinet council was hastily summoned in the ministry building to which the body had been taken and in the presence of the dead body, Senor Garcia Prieto, marquis of Albuera, undertook to continue the work of the government.

The square was immediately a scene of great confusion. Packed at the time of the shooting, it now became a veritable crush.

Pandemonium After Shooting.
Policemen came running from every direction, drawing their revolvers or cutlasses. Dozens of civil guards, a kind of military police, poured out of the ministry of the interior, fixing their bayonets, or slipping cartridges into their rifles as they came.

For several minutes there was pandemonium. The police undertook to drive the throng out of the Puerto, but another mob fought to get in to find out what the cause of the excitement was. The cafes emptied struggling mobs into the melee, the frightened mules added their braying to the tumult. Temporary order was not restored until a detachment of cavalry appeared on the scene.

The assassin, after shooting himself, was immediately conveyed to the nearest first aid depot. The bullet had lodged in his right temple.

No important document was found on him. He expired at 12:30 o'clock without making a declaration of any kind.

Alfonso Deeply Affected.
King Alfonso was informed of the assassination a few minutes after it was committed. He expressed horror and was deeply affected. Hastening to the ministry of the interior, he prayed for several minutes beside the body of his dead counselor before summoning a cabinet meeting.

Foreign Minister Prieto was appointed to act as premier until a permanent selection could be made. A heavy guard was then placed over the royal palace and no one is allowed to linger in its vicinity.

BOYS ARE TRAPPED BY TIDE

They Shout and Fire Shotgun Until Help Comes After Nightfall.

Philadelphia.—Clinging to the stump of a tree on an inundated island in Darby creek, Edward Haberle, 18 years old, and Winfield Toy, 16 years old, both of Collingdale, were rescued with the water within a few inches of their feet and high tide still coming in.

The young men were exhausted and collapsed when taken into a boat that had gone from Collingdale to their rescue.

Early in the afternoon Haberle and Toy, armed with shotguns, started out to hunt blackbirds. At low tide there are numerous small islands in the "broken meadows," and the boys wandered in search of game. Toward evening they suddenly awoke to a realization that the tide was rising and that they were cut off from the mainland. Neither of them could swim, so they climbed up the trunk of a dead tree that extended five feet above the level of the island.

Darkness was coming on, and the boys in terror, shouted for help. Their cries were unanswered. Then they started to fire their guns. Each had about fifteen rounds of ammunition, and they fired every shot before attracting attention. Just as they had given up hope, Charley Hutt, who had heard the shots from a distance, appeared on the bank of Darby creek.

He called to the boys to swim across, and when he learned that neither could swim, told them to remain where they were until he summoned help. Hutt communicated with the Collingdale police, and Policemen Diehl, Jones and Trumbach jumped into a boat and rowed swiftly to the scene.

It was so dark when the rescue boat arrived that the policemen could not see the boys, and had to be guided by their shouts. According to the police, the tree trunk upon which the young men took refuge is completely covered when the tide reaches its highest mark.

TWINS REGISTER AT POLLS

Have No Trouble in Proving They Are Old Enough to Vote—Are 93
Years of Age.

New York.—"William Muncy, 93 years old, born in Babylon, and have lived hereabouts all my life."

This was the substance of answers given by a voter at Babylon, L. I.

As he stepped aside, another man, his duplicate in form and features, stood before the registry board. He said his name was James Muncy, and gave the same information regarding himself.

The two men are the Muncy twins, said to be the oldest twins in the world. They walked from their farms at West Babylon to register, and afterward walked back, a distance of four miles.

The remarkable pair were the center of attraction at the registering place. They appeared to be in rugged health and mentally alert. When handed the blanks for enrollment they smiled at each other and placed a cross beneath the fountain emblem of the Prohibition party. Then, with a cheery good afternoon to the assemblage, they walked briskly away.

For seventy years the twins have registered and voted together, seldom missing a year. Both have been farmers all their lives.

LAW SCARES MALE TEACHERS

Men Shun Service in the New York
Schools and List of Applicants for Places Is Exhausted.

New York.—The public schools of New York City are today face to face with one of the results of the equal pay law, which secured like salaries for men and women teachers.

This week the board of education will appoint as teachers in the elementary schools 388 women and twenty-two men, and with these appointments the eligible list of male applicants is exhausted.

It is improbable that any more men teachers will be appointed for many years, for the waiting list shows 688 women and no men, and the reduction in men's salaries has made it extremely difficult to get men to apply for the places.

Two years ago men's salaries were a third greater than they are today. Before the equal pay law went into effect a man teacher started at $800 and went to $2,150 in twelve years; now he starts at $720 and may hope to reach $1,500 after fifteen years.

SAVES FATHER FROM BULL

Tennessee Lad Throws Rocks at Animal That Was Goring His Parent.

Nashville, Tenn.—Prompt response of his twelve-year-old son to his cries for help saved the life of Dr. B. J. Shelton, a prominent physician of Antioch, near here, when the physician was gored by a vicious bull. Dr. Shelton was thrown to the ground, three ribs being broken and a deep gash cut in his chest by the horns of the infuriated animal.

Young Shelton threw rocks at the bull and attracted his attention after his father was down.

GIRL HOOKS SHARK

Man-Eater Pulled in From Deck of Ocean Liner.

Young Tourist in Casting Lines in Water for Amusement When She Gets a Real Bite and Makes a Record Catch.

New York.—Shark fishing has long since assumed the proportions of a gentle art down Costa Rica way, according to the stock tales of returning tourists, but it remained for a winsome Brooklyn girl—Miss Cecile Des Place—to startle the natives with a catch that set angler tongues wagging all up and down the wild coast. With fifteen minutes fishing to her credit, Miss Des Place landed a 300-pound man-eating shark that set the populace of Port Limon by the ears and caused her name to be displayed in scarehead type in the Costa Rican dailies. Her coup was set down as an epoch marker in a country where men haul up the monsters of the deep for a living and make big catches every day of the week.

Miss Des Place arrived home aboard the Hamburg-American liner Prinz August Wilhelm, and in her traveling bag were several long teeth pulled from the head of her big sensational catch as souvenirs. She intends to have them appropriately mounted and set up as an ornament in her parlor of the Des Place home in Brooklyn. The pretty shark catcher manifested considerable diffidence in discussing her coup over at the pier the other morning, but there were plenty of her friends on board who were not averse to telling just how it happened.

"You see, it was this way," one of them explained. "We were anchored in the harbor of Port Limon, one of the prettiest on the Costa Rican coast, by the way, and the tourists on board for want of something more profitable to do fell to casting lines into the clear limpid water that swished so rhythmically alongside the vessel. Miss Des Place watched the sport for a while and then expressed a desire to try her hand. Her request was granted, and what do you think? No sooner had she settled to a watch on the bobbing cork than the line stretched taut and something began making away with the other end of it."

"Miss Des Place was jerked against the railing and might have gone overboard had not two or three of her companions grabbed her. Stronger hands seized the line, and after a thirty-minute tussle we got the 'catch' aboard. It was the biggest catch of the day regardless of vessel or point on shore. It was a shark just like the pictures you see in those wild sea stories. We weighed the monster and the scales tipped 300 pounds. Of course no woman in Costa Rica had ever accomplished a feat of that magnitude before, and Miss Des Place was a heroine with the Port Limon folk during the remainder of our stay there."

The heroine agreed in the generalities of the story, but professed too much modesty to go into details from her viewpoint.

"It was merely an accident," she said, and let it go at that.

BRAKEMAN GETS FORTUNE

He Quits Railway Work at $85 Per Month and Retires With $51,000.

Red Bluff, Cal.—Leo Hellawell was Thursday a Southern Pacific brakeman receiving the ordinary wages of $85 a month. Today he is retired and the possessor of a small fortune of $51,000. And this sudden rise to fortune has not in any manner affected the young man other than to induce him to forsake railroad work for all time.

Hellawell, who is twenty-one years of age, resided with his parents in this city for several years. His mother died in a hospital in San Francisco a few weeks ago.

Thursday, while at the Dunsmuir end of his run, Hellawell received word that $1,000 insurance carried by his mother was awaiting him here. On the same day he received word that he was heir to $50,000, this amount being bequests from his mother's relatives in the east.

His Kind Warm.

Denver.—A tortoise set fire to St. Mark's Episcopal church here, considerable damage resulting and twenty-five tortoise lives being lost.

The tortoise kicked over a lamp in a box where he and twenty-four others made their home. The box was kept in the guildroom of the church and the lamp was put in the box to keep the animals warm. They were the property of Rev. John H. Houghton, rector of St. Mark's, who had collected them from various parts of the world.

MONARCH METAL Weather Strips

Do not think of the Monarch Metal Weather Strips as a luxury to be put on as something extra when you can afford it. You cannot afford to be without them. Read this carefully.

Every window and door in your house—in everybody's house—that is not weather stripped, has cracks between the sash and the frame, which is usually about 1-16 inch to make the sash operate properly under all conditions. It has been proven conclusively that with a wind velocity of 15 miles per hour, this crevice will admit 145 cubic feet of air per hour for every lineal foot of length. (See Engineering Review of March, 1911.) This means nearly 3,000 cubic feet of air per hour on a double hung window of average size. With greater velocity of wind, this amount is proportionately increased.

This means cold air, dirt, soot. It may mean frozen water pipes. It does mean drudgery of endless cleaning and dusting, which can be remedied with the

MONARCH METAL WEATHER STRIPS

These strips also stop all rattling of windows, and the windows will always be easy to operate, and there will be no sticking. There are many kinds of weather strips, from the old rubber-edged kind, whose life lasts about a year, to the sharp-edged metal type that cuts the hands, sash cords, etc., and requires deep grooves in the sash for its installation.

The PERFECT type is the MONARCH METAL WEATHER STRIP. It consists of two sliding tubes, a tube within a tube. This ingenious interlocking shape makes the strip absolutely weather-tight.

A test made of a double-hung sash, 36x36, fitted 1-16 play all around, with the wind at a velocity of thirty-five miles an hour, allowed a leakage of 109.98 cubic feet of air per minute. Equipped with the Monarch Metal Weather Strip, the leakage was reduced to 3.36 cubic feet of air per minute, 25 per cent more efficient than any other.

Sides, top and sill strip are made of zinc, and the interlocking strip at the meeting rail is made of copper and bronze.

They are applied to any windows or doors, old or new, by experienced mechanics, and are guaranteed unconditionally, for wear and repair, to outlast the frames to which they are attached.

The following buildings are already equipped with the Monarch Metal Weather Strips:

The Elks' Club.
Bovey Building.
South Side High School.
W. J. McAlpine Residence.

HID BOMBS IN SWAMP

M'MANIGAL TELLS OF KANSAS CITY AND PEORIA JOBS. Witness Says in One Place He Had to Prepare Charge Twice to Make It Work. Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Ortie E. McManigal told at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial how, with twelve quarts of nitroglycerin, he arrived in Kansas City, Mo., to blow up a bridge across the Missouri river there in August, 1910. He testified he had gone as a paid accomplice of John J. McNamara, who at Indianapolis had instructed him to cause three explosions on the bridge being built by nonunion workmen. At Kansas City McManigal said he left his nitroglycerin successively at the railway station, a boarding-house and at a hotel. "I had one ten-quart can and one two-quart can," said McManigal. "To divide it into three bombs I went to a paintshop and got three four-quart varnish cans, distributing the explosive in the new cans. With alarm-clock attachments, I took the stuff out and buried it in a swamp near the bridge. While working in the swamp I thought I saw some one coming, so I hurriedly hid the bombs in the weeds. On returning I could find only two of them. "I set the bombs to explode that night and went back to town. The explosion failed to come off. I found the batteries were too weak, and replaced them the next day. The explosion took place about 8:30 p. m. August 23. "From Kansas City I went to Peoria, Ill., where I was to do a job. I got in touch with Edward Synthe, the iron workers' business agent. Synthe took me through a cornfield and pointed out the plant of the Lucas Bridge and Iron company, saying: 'That's the job to be blown up.' "McManigal said he caused the Peoria explosion September 4. It damaged six adjacent buildings. DIXON ISSUES "MOOSE" CALL Progressive National Committee to Assemble in Chicago December 11-12 for Conference. Washington, Nov. 13.—Senator Joseph M. DIAZ ESCAPES PRISON

Mexican Rebel Leader in Hiding in New Orleans.Nephew of Former President "Avades"
His Guards at Vera Cruz—May Start New Rebellion.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 13.—Gen. Felix Diaz, condemned to death, has escaped from the military prison at Vera Cruz, Mex., and is now in the United States, probably at New Orleans. Andres Carza Galan, one of the leaders of the Mexican revolutionary junta here, confirmed the report from Mexico that General Diaz had escaped and is now in United States territory. He declined to tell the whereabouts of the escaped prisoner for fear he would be arrested by United States secret service men and possibly deported to Mexico.

General Diaz escaped from San Juan de Ulloa military prison last Friday. He made his way in a launch north along the Mexican coast to a few miles north of Tampico. There he met friends who provided him with a disguise, after which he boarded a National line train and reached Matamoras. At that point he crossed to Brownsville, Tex., and from there went either to Galveston or New Orleans. Diaz apparently did not "evade" his guards, but the latter purposely allowed him to escape.
